Complex Products

We will only allow you to invest in Complex Products if you have received advice from a regulated financial adviser in respect of the proposed investment.

Under regulations, there is no definition of Complex Products. However, the regulations define Non-Complex Products as follows:

- Units/shares in a UCITS qualifying Collective Investment Scheme;
- Shares, bonds and other forms of securitised debt admitted to trading on a trading venue;
- Structured deposits;
- Money market instruments; and
- Other products that meet certain criteria, including:
 - having frequent opportunities to trade at publicly available prices,
 - do not involve potential liability that exceeds the original investment,
 - do not include exit charges that have the effect of making the investment illiquid, and
 - where adequate comprehensive information on the investment is publicly available and likely to be readily understood by the average retail client.

Complex Products are therefore anything that is outside of this definition of Non-Complex products. Broadly speaking, Complex Products are investments involving derivatives or where the opportunity to sell is infrequent.

If you are investing without having received financial advice and are unsure if your proposed investment is a Complex Product, please ask the investment provider.

Units in collective investment schemes specified as stakeholder products	The collective investment scheme must be specified as a stakeholder product under regulation 5 of the FSMA 2000 (Stakeholder Products) Regulations 2004.
Depository Interests	UK regulation requires securities to be electronically settled in CREST. For companies registered outside the UK, this is achieved through a depository interest mechanism. The Depository Interest is effectively an electronic 'wrapper' around the ordinary share, to facilitate securities to be held electronically rather than in paper form. A company applies for Depository Interests representing ordinary shares to be admitted to CREST with effect from its admission to the market. For further information on the criteria for Depository Interests to be held in the ISA, please contact us.
Depository Receipts	Depository Receipts are a type of security and should not be confused with Depository Interests. A Depository Receipt can be held in an ISA providing the underlying shares represented by the Depository Receipt are in the beneficial ownership of the holder and are themselves ISA-qualifying. For further information on the criteria for Depository Receipts to be held in the ISA, please contact us.
Cash	Please note that there are currently no fixed term cash deposit accounts available within the ISA. Any cash must be held in sterling in the ISA product bank account.
